Oliver is a community nestled in the beautiful south end of the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia. Oliver, also known as "The Wine Capital of Canada", offers visitors and residents a blend of agriculture, outdoor recreation and quality vineyards to occupy their time. The region produces more than a third of British Columbia's wines and supplies quality local produce readily available at farmers' markets and roadside fruit stands.

Oliver is a nature lovers' paradise. The community is tucked into the northern most point of the Great Basin Desert which provides a diverse landscape and a wealth of activities year round. Visitors and locals are able to go windsurfing, fishing, or canoeing on Lake Tuc-el-Nuit, go skiing, snowboarding or snow shoeing at Mt. Baldy, play golf at one of two championship golf courses, and hike or bike one of several trails.
